

FOREWORD TO BREAD FOUNDATION

Everywhere in the world nations have to pass thru the same evolution in order to develop. We all started as hordes and tribes who were fighting for hunting areas. From hordes and tribes different clans were shaped which were followed by nations who developed their special organs and institutes to work more efficiently for livelihood and sustenance. Later the fight was always going on for other interest than hunting areas. They were fighting for arable lands, water resources, mines, strategic zones etc. and this fight made the structure of nations more differentiated and sophisticated. This is how the first states had appeared and developed their institutes and armies according to their environment and interest.

After thousands of years of social evolution the world started to divide into two parts: west and east. In this bipolar world both the west and east were forcing their systems as omnipotent models to the rest of the world while both side were forgetting their own evolution what was necessary for being passed thru in order to get to the same result. In case we are not following the rules of the evolution we fail. The rest of the world was missing those institutes and social backgrounds what were necessary to implement and construct the models, which were offered by the west and east. As a result these nations have become losers or colonies or zones of interest and started to serve for the "forces of superiority".

Today we live in a unipolar world but the fight is still on. This is called globalization. In other words some groups of people want to concentrate every capital and control over the world on the expense of the rest of the people. These superior groups know well the rules of the evolution and they prevent the "inferior" nations to pass thru in order to develop. They put traps and pumps on their way...so these nations instead of differentiating their own institutes and organs are circulating between one kinds of slavery into another. This is a worldwide social practice. The traps and pumps are working everywhere in the developing world preventing to establish liquid monetary systems, recapitalization, economy and stability. The communication is wonderful everywhere about the support of the developing world but there is no action, no effective step to stop the trend. One side of the world is helping the superior team while the other side is going to interfere into the Processes on the level of local governments or politics. It is a mistake. We always have to follow the steps how God is creating organs and life. He is not using politicians and governments.

Every economy stands on the following pillars:

1. Resources (row materials, water energy etc.)
2. Liquid monetary system
3. Processing (agriculture, industry etc)
4. Local markets

The superior groups have demolished already 3 of these elements: liquidity, processing and local markets. Now they have concentrated their powers to take away even the fourth one, the resources. In case they can do it the developing countries will lose their chance to develop once for ever. So we have still one element: the resources...and one more: the laws of God. If we keep these laws we can succeed.

Every ontogenesis is repeating the same stages of the evolution. In other words life has started in this Globe from one cell and you as human was created in the womb of your mother from one cell, too. This cell has to divide and differentiate in order to come forth the initials of the nerve system and blood circulation and selection. If these systems start to work God is "hanging" on them the different organs like heart and liver and kidney and brain. Later both the systems and the organs will effect each other to perfect each other's function and anatomy. When the whole system is about to reach the level of maturity God is bringing it forth as a newborn creature. See... even God is not creating "ready made" products. However our omnipotent world rulers are forcing people to take over unquestionable models...This is an abuse...abusing the world.

In our own ontogenesis everything happens in the same way, as it has to happen with the evolution of the different nations and states and their institutions.

Our one cell is now the resource. From this one cell after the necessary procedures we have to reach into the stage of differentiation of different systems. System of liquidity and proceeding and local markets. These systems cannot work according to those borders what humans were creating around nations. These systems can only work according to their natural expenditure and volume...and these are following regional and not country borders. If the systems were differentiated later the organs and institutions will perfect the function of the systems and come forth societies who are not superior nor inferior however developed. This is the way how we recommend the worldwide Globalization should take place.

In order to achieve this beacon we the founders are establishing the BREAD Foundation and call different countries and nations and organizations to work with us and support our proposals. Today even the BREAD Foundation is only one cell but this one cell has the potential promote processes and reforms and development because BREAD Foundation is a bridge between experts and organizations and people of good will and of faith in God.

The idea of BREAD Foundation was initiated by an independent and local patriot black group of experts and clergymen (Christian-Muslim) in Zimbabwe in 2007. The BREAD Foundation is not against and not for any political group. The BREAD Foundation is for nations of the developing countries in order to generate processes for a human-faced globalization.

With this initiation we want to demonstrate and prove to the world that even in one of the poorest economies of the poorest continent there is the potential for changes and for conversion into a society what is not above or under other societies while is an organic part of the developed Global and Eternal system.
